*Food Producers of Idaho is opposed to S1093 because the United States Food and Drug Administration regulates labeling requirements and other areas addressed in this legislation. Advancing duplicative state regulation for labeling will likely cause consumer confusion, uncertainty, and logistical challenges.

*Food Producers of Idaho is opposed to H154 because the bill states that it would prohibit administration of any vaccine produced with messenger ribonucleic acid technology (mRNA) for use in humans or mammals. The mRNA technology is not currently available in any vaccine for livestock producers, but experts are developing vaccines that would assist producers using this type of technology. Making it a misdemeanor for producers to use vaccines with mRNA in them would stifle future efforts to use this technology to prevent diseases in livestock.
